Supporting you to support your communities during the COVID-19 crisis: A Workshop for Headteachers, Senior Leadership Teams and Governors

During this unprecedented crisis, schools and settings are the lynchpins for their communities. Ensuring pupils', families' and staff safety, promoting learning, and providing emotional support for families in distress, while keeping your complex organisations running... Headteachers & their senior leadership teams are managing a huge amount.

The Educational Psychology Service is offering a workshop which aims to cover the following:

- A shared discussion about the current and future challenges.
- Promoting evidence relating to what can help in the short, medium and long term.
- Thinking together about responding to illness and death in your communities.
- Supporting your own wellbeing.
- Planning together to meet your future needs and the best format for you.

Please book onto one of our two (identical) workshops, held on Microsoft Teams by emailing Cassie.Laver@enfield.gov.uk

Monday 27th April at 10am to 11.30am
