

NCL CDR Key worker training

North Central London Child Death Review (CDR) partners are working with Child Bereavement UK to offer four 3 hour interactive training sessions on supporting parents and families when a child dies. Each session will explore the impact on the family unit and recognise the physical and emotional reactions to grief. The training session will give you an understanding of what parents may need when faced with the death of their child. The sessions aim to assist practitioners who may be identified as key workers for the Child Death Review process and give increased confidence in offering support appropriate to their needs.
